

CCCAP

The Colorado Child Care Assistance Program (CCCAP) helps families pay for child care.

Colorado families may be able to participate in CCCAP if they:

- Are working, searching for employment, or participating in training/education
- Have at least one child under the age of 13 (or under the age of 19 if the child has special needs)
- Are income eligible
- Receive Colorado Works/Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF)
- Care for a child with an open child welfare case

CCCAP can help families in a variety of ways.

A single mom, with two children (ages two and three), who works as a teacher, shared:

“I could not financially do it without CCCAP, and that’s the truth. So, I’m incredibly grateful for the aid because it allows my two girls to go to high-quality child care. I know they’re safe and they’re loved and they’re getting great educational opportunities; I am able to afford it, but then still be able to afford to take my daughter to dance, pay for groceries, and still make ends meet.

It really has helped both me and the girls be able to have a consistent schedule and have consistency and reliability in our day-to-day lives, because I know they love going to school, and I can continue to work and not have to stress about them having a safe place to be when I’m not with them.”
